

THE OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY

Call for Posters
Center for Foodborne Illness Research and Prevention (CFI) Inaugural Event
Thursday November 14, 2019
The Drake Performance Center

All Ohio State University students, faculty, and staff engaged in food safety research are invited to contribute posters to the poster session of the inaugural event for the Center for Foodborne Illness Research and Prevention (CFI) “Translating Science into Policy and Practice: What are the food safety priorities?”. The poster session will take place on November 14, 2019 from 12:30pm to 6:30pm in The Drake Performance Center. Presenters will have the opportunity to discuss their work, meet new colleagues, and connect with potential collaborators.

Submit your abstract online by Friday October 25 11:59pm. For submission of your abstract, email a Microsoft Word file to cfi@osu.edu. Please plan to use the following instructions for abstract submission: include a title and presenter(s) name, title, departmental affiliation, advisor; limit your abstract to 200 words; do not include diagrams, illustrations, or other graphic objects. Selected poster presenters will be notified by Friday November 1.

Previously presented posters from international meetings or other venues are permitted, and no specific template is required. Please contact Sheri Morgan at morgan.915@osu.edu or cfi@osu.edu if you require an Ohio State template.

Please register for the CFI Inaugural Event and to present a poster here:
foodsafety.osu.edu/events

For more information or questions, please contact cfi@osu.edu.